PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE:

For over thirty years, Steve has been involved in all phases of golf course design and restoration around the world. His design approach, which has been shaped by the “traditionalist” philosophy of Arthur Hills, is to create a challenging, yet playable course which highlights the beauty and natural features of a given site.

Steve has extensive national and international experience in all types of golf course development including new courses and renovation of high-end private clubs, upscale residential developments, and municipality owned affordable public courses. He brings to any project a diverse history of successful project management experience.
